

Look better

You look better on a Northeast Airlines' FH-227...
the wing is above you...never spoils the view

Introducing Northeast's new fleet of FH-227's, each with a proud sweep of sunshine yellow from nose to tail. These Fairchild "Yellowbirds" are the flightleaders of Northeast's new expanded service for New England.

The FH-227 is a product of one of the world's great aircraft companies, Fairchild Hiller, and features the very latest innovations in passenger comfort and safety. The prop-jet, "Dart" engines that power the FH-227 are precision-built by Rolls-Royce. Noted for their reliability, Dart engines have more than 30,000,000 hours of civil flying to their credit.

You'll be pleased to know that all Northeast Fairchild "Yellowbirds" are completely air conditioned. (The cabin is as comfortable on the ground as it is in the air.) They are also fully pressurized so that you can cruise in sea-level comfort even at 12,000 feet. (No more ear popping!)

The seats are wide, contoured and comfortable, with ample leg room. The tasteful interiors were styled by Raymond Loewy/William Snaith, one of the world's finest industrial design firms. Cabin interiors feature textures and wool fabrics specially selected to be beautiful as well as harmonious. Custom carpets, drapes and seats in patterned tapestries and oatmeal tweeds in warm, golden colors suggesting the richness of a New England harvest are all blended and interwoven in an imaginative decor that is designed to please you.

One of the most outstanding passenger features of the FH-227 comes as a result of its distinctive high-wing design. The wings are above the unusually large windows, instead of below as on most other airliners. This allows all passengers throughout the plane (even those in aisle seats) an exciting and unobstructed panoramic view.

You can relax and enjoy freshly brewed coffee from the FH-227's efficient galley as you fly serenely over the beautiful New England countryside. And when you arrive at your destination, there is no waiting for ground equipment. The cabin door has an integral ramp . . . only six steps down to ground level. You can grab your bag from the built-in carry-on baggage racks and be on your way. However, even if your baggage is in the hold, you won't be delayed. It will be unloaded quickly by a Northeast ramp agent through a large ground level door.

Everything about the Fairchild "Yellowbird" is designed for speed. It even has underwing fueling so that a man standing beneath the wing can fuel the plane in a matter of minutes. In fact no special ground equipment at all is needed to service the FH-227. This means shorter ground stops — more schedule dependability.

NORTHEAST BOEING YELLOWBIRD

Northeast has ordered 7 Fairchild "Yellowbirds" with options for more. All 7 should be delivered in the Fall of 1966, and will replace the venerable though popular DC-3's on our New England routes.

Everything is new on the new Northeast! In addition to our prop-jet FH-227's, Northeast has also ordered a great new hundred-million dollar fleet of pure jets (Boeing 727's and Douglas DC-9's) for our longer routes.

More than just a mighty fleet of the newest jets in the sky, Northeast's Yellowbirds are the gleaming symbol of a brand new airline. New meals, new ways with baggage, new personalized reservations service. New schedules with more flights. And people with a new desire to serve you better.

Northeast FH-227 service will be introduced to New England cities on the dates shown below. Watch for this great new service to come to your city, then catch a Yellowbird and let luxury happen to you.
